Richard Misinco Pavilion Dedication

On Sunday, July 17th, our parishioners joined the Misinco family to dedicate the pavilion to our beloved Richard Misinco. 'Papa' Joe Brandon spoke of when Richard, a retired architect, was Senior Warden and began construction of the building. Rev. Morgan said a prayer and spoke of how the Misinco family is treasured in our parish. Richard's wife, Mercedes, also spoke of her husband and his time at St. Luke's.

Neil McDonald and the St. Luke's Men's Group were hard at work perfecting the structure for the big event. They brilliantly repurposed the old St. Luke's sign into new signage for the pavilion front. In addition, they refinished the countertops. The SLMG should be applauded for their hard work and thriftiness.

After the dedication, everyone returned to Thomason Hall for homemade treats and goodies. This was a perfect summer day filled with sunshine, praise, and love for one another. It will long live in our memories.

WSL Cookbook

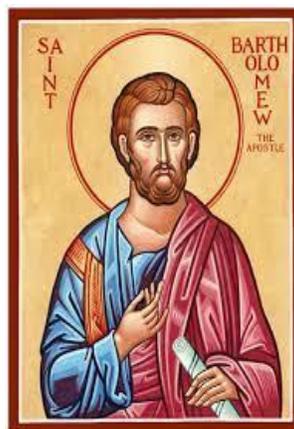

The women of St. Luke's are compiling a new cookbook. We need your delicious recipes. This includes the men! We know some of you guys are very talented behind the grill and in the oven.

The new cookbook will be interesting. As well as recipes, it will also include the history of St. Luke's. If you have stories you would like to share, please contact Judy Brooten or Meredith Yacavone.

To submit recipes, please send them in the form of an email, word document, or anything that can be copied and pasted, to iceni2000@gmail.com.

Reflections from the Rector...

I write this column while in England, a few days after attending a conference in Oxford, “that sweet city with her dreaming spires,” to quote Thomas Arnold. A number of things have changed here – not just in Oxford but throughout the UK – since I was here in 2018. Very sadly, a number of retail establishment and restaurants that have been around for half a century or longer have gone away. Blame it on covid, I guess you could say. More troubling still is the drift from Christian values and mores. London, in particular seems to be given wholly to hedonism and debauchery, at least that is the impression one gets from banners and placards along the major thoroughfares. It is definitely not the same city I encountered 41 years ago on my first visit. For example, in those far off days, there was no mistaking which day was the “Lord’s Day”. At least within the royal square mile of the City of London, it was virtually impossible to find a place to eat on Sunday. Churches were open; shops and restaurants closed. But there have been some bright spots as well. The first thing I encountered as I dragged my suitcase along a busy pedestrian shopping street upon arriving in Oxford was the Gospel being announced. Students from a local church were taking the message of Jesus to where the people were, in much the same way St. Paul had done in his day on Mars Hill in Athens (Acts 17). No wild-eyed extremists, these were earnest young people seeking to fulfil the mission God had given them. Another bright spot was attending my regular church in London – the Temple Church. The oldest section of this edifice was built in 1185 by the returning Knight’s Templers following the First Crusade. Over 800 years later, people of all ages continued to gather here to praise and thank God for His matchless works, to offer prayers for their needs and others, to be baptized and to be joined together in holy wedlock. A final bright spot came while seated in the garden of friends in the rural county of Shropshire. Another couple had come round for a visit, and during the course of conversation, the husband asked me about the future, in particular about the future of civilization and the planet. From that starting point, I was able to share, albeit briefly, a word of Christian hope. My message to him went along these lines: history is going somewhere. It’s not just jumble of dates and events, without purpose, meaning or hope. Life is to be lived in the light of the God who so loved the world that He sent His Son and whose purpose and plan is to make all things new (Revelation 21:5). What makes this enquiry a bright spot is: no matter how secularized the age, people remain wired for God. The trinkets of the world are not enough to satisfy the deepest longing the human heart. We in the Church – that included all baptized people, not just clergy -- have a Gospel (good news) to proclaim. More than that, we have been given people with whom to share it. They are all around us. Take courage. Seize every opportunity for Christ. Dare to do your part. God is in control.

Shrimp Boil

10 minutes for prep and 20 minutes to cook gives you an easy dinner in 30 minutes using only one pot!

Ingredients:

- 3 Lemons
- ½ Cup Old Bay Seasoning
- 6 Smashed garlic cloves
- 1 Onion peeled & cut into 6 pieces
- 1 LB Small red potatoes halved
- 4 Ears of corn cut into 3-4” pieces
- 2 LB Peeled and deveined shrimp
- 1 LB Smoked sausage cut into 1” pieces
- 2 Tbsp Butter
- 2 Tbsp Chopped parsley

Instructions:

- Cut 2 of the lemons into quarters. Cut the remaining lemon into wedges and reserve the wedges for later use.
- Fill a large pot with 12-14 cups of water. Place the 2 quartered lemons in the water along with the Old Bay seasoning, garlic and onion. Bring to a boil.
- Add the potatoes to the pot and cook for 10-12 minutes or until just tender. Add the corn and sausage and cook for another 3-4 minutes.
- Add the shrimp to the pot and cook for 2-3 minutes or until pink and opaque.
- Drain the shrimp mixture from the pot, reserving 1 cup of the broth.
- Melt the butter and whisk it into the reserved broth. Pour the broth over the shrimp mixture.
- Garnish with chopped parsley and lemon wedges. Sprinkle with additional Old Bay seasoning to taste, then serve.
